PERSONALITY TYPE

- Discover your personality type (you can do this test: <https://www.16personalities.com/teams>) and describe your personality in one paragraph.

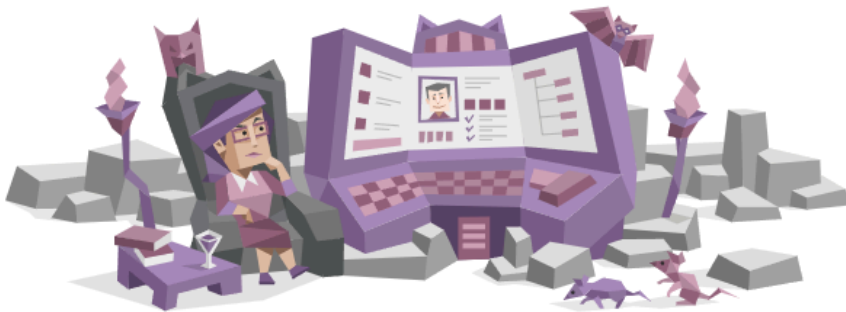

Based on the personality test, I have the INTJ-A personality type (Architects). I emphasize more on intuition than observation as well as a heavy focus on logic versus emotions. I am assertive and pride myself for my ability to think independently. I feel that the test was pretty accurate in describing how I feel about my personality.

Introduction

Thought constitutes the greatness of man. Man is a reed, the feeblest thing in nature, but he is a thinking reed.

Blaise Pascal

People with the INTJ personality type (Architects) are intellectually curious individuals with a deep-seated thirst for knowledge. INTJs tend to value creative ingenuity, straightforward rationality, and self-improvement. They consistently work toward enhancing intellectual abilities and are often driven by an intense desire to master any and every topic that piques their interest.

Logical and quick-witted, INTJs pride themselves on their ability to think for themselves, not to mention their uncanny knack for seeing right through phoniness and hypocrisy. Because their minds are never at rest, these personalities may sometimes struggle to find people who can keep up with their nonstop analysis of everything around them. But when they do find like-minded individuals who appreciate their intensity and depth of thought, INTJs form profound and intellectually stimulating relationships that they deeply treasure.

STRENGTHS

Here are top 5 things you are really good at according to the HIGH5 strengths test

- 1 Philomath
- 2 Analyst
- 3 Catalyst
- 4 Deliverer
- 5 Problem Solver

My strength test had similar results to my personality test, with an emphasis on logic, analytical thinking, problem solving, and a curiosity for learning. I would agree with all five but I could improve the Deliverers strength with some better time management skills.

Strength	Description
Philomaths	Philomaths love learning. They explore many interests, follow new paths and acquire as much knowledge as possible. They don't enjoy the company of so-called 'know-it-alls', people with little curiosity and no desire to explore new ideas.
Analysts	Analysts get energized when searching for simplicity and clarity within a large amount of data. They become frustrated when asked to follow their heart rather than proven facts and logic.
Catalysts	Catalysts love to get things started and are great at creating momentum in stagnant environments. They have a hard time waiting and so-called 'wasting time' when they know they could be moving forward and getting things off the ground.
Deliverers	Deliverers follow through on their commitments and appreciate seeing how this builds more trust and respect among others. They feel terrible if promises get broken - both on the receiving and giving side.
Problem Solvers	Problem Solvers love uncovering flaws, diagnosing problems and coming up with solutions. It is difficult for them to simply sweep unresolved issues under the rug and keep going as if everything is fine.
